Amy Florian Joins Advisory Board of Soaring Spirits International

October 7, 2016, Hoffman Estates, IL. -- Amy Florian, CEO and founder of professional training firm Corgenius, has been joined the Advisory Board of Soaring Spirits International (SSI), an organization providing peer-based grief support programs for widowed men and women around the world. As part of the Advisory Board, Florian broadens her lifelong efforts to help others find meaning and hope in the midst of suffering.

Based on a foundation of powerful community and shared experience, Soaring Spirits' mission is to ensure that no widowed person needs to grieve alone. The organization offers both online and in-person opportunities for finding peer support. Its signature program, Camp Widow[®], is hosted three times a year and brings together widowed people from around the globe to celebrate the healing power of community.

SSI's Founder and Executive Director, Michele Neff Hernandez, believes that Amy Florian will be a valuable addition to the Soaring Spirits' Advisory Board, "We are excited to add Ms. Florian's expertise to the SSI Advisory Board. Amy is both professionally and personally passionate about serving widowed people, and her dedication to our common cause makes her a perfect fit for providing valuable counsel to Soaring Spirits International's Board of Directors as we continue serving widowed people around the world."

"Soaring Spirits' mission has tremendous personal meaning to me and I genuinely look forward to serving on the Advisory Board," states Florian. "I am honored to work side-by-side with these generous individuals who are so dedicated to helping others cope with life-changing loss. It has always been my greatest hope that everyone in our society learns how to deal better with grief, illness, and death."
